Petrobras signs upstream participation agreement to begin exploration activities offshore Colombia

(Rio de Janeiro, May 7, 2004). PETRÓLEO BRASILEIRO S/A - PETROBRAS, [Bovespa: PETR3/PETR4, NYSE: PBR/PBRA, Latibex: XPBR/XPBRA], a Brazilian international energy company, announces today that its affiliate, Petrobras Colombia, together with Ecopetrol and ExxonMobil, signed a participation agreement to begin exploration activities offshore Colombia.

The agreement covers the 45 thousand km² (11 million acres) Tayrona block, off Colombia's northern coast in the Caribbean Sea. Petrobras will be the operator during the exploration phase, and ExxonMobil will be the operator for the development phase in the event that gas be discovered on the block.

Petrobras has been present in Colombia since 1986, holding at this moment, exploration and production rights in 15 onshore blocks, mostly acting as operator.

Tayrona block presents water depths up to 1,500 meters (5,000 ft), thus representing another step towards the consolidation of Petrobras as a major player in the deep waters outside Brazil, in compliance with the company's Strategic Plan, following the successful ventures in West Africa and the US Gulf of Mexico.
