I have exciting news to share with you. Today, before the US financial markets opened, our strategic partner EMC announced a definitive agreement to acquire LEGATO Systems, Inc. in a stock transaction valued at approximately $1.3 billion. Attached for your reference, you will find the press release that was just sent across the wire.

What will this acquisition mean for us? We will be a part of a global leader in information management that will:

be backed by over $5 billion in cash, removing any questions about our financial viability.

provide access to greater resources and opportunities, for each of us, for our customers and for our partners.

enable us to learn more and broaden our focus to extend the sum of our technologies.

as well as position us even better to serve the emerging needs of our customers and transform the information management industry well into the future.

EMC chose LEGATO because of our software-focused sales expertise, extensive channel partner relationships, independent software development approach, and the strong service capabilities, which will complement their business strategy and enhance their ability to address the business critical needs of customers of all sizes around the globe. And it is this team who has built this value and continues to drive our success.

We're combining world-class storage technology with our leadership in information protection, access and availability. LEGATO brings a unique value proposition to this combination as our solution set helps expand EMC's Information Safety platform to a broader Information Access and Recovery platform, including the very strong growth areas of email and content management. In addition, we're combining two winning employee populations that possess strikingly similar reputations for developing innovative products and embodying relentless customer focus and support. Together, we will be aligned to set the stage for a new era in how customers store, manage and access information.

The acquisition is expected to close in Q4, 2003. EMC intends to operate LEGATO as a separate division led by myself and other members of our current senior management team. EMC is planning to maintain the LEGATO brand, so that we can continue to sell and service our software in heterogeneous environments, which is one of our greatest strengths. Customers will be able to buy LEGATO software independently of EMC hardware. Therefore, our sales, marketing and service organizations will remain focused on selling and servicing our full line of products and solutions.

After the close, we will begin to integrate our engineering and development functions so that we leverage our software expertise with EMC's considerable resources. Our goal is to accelerate the development and delivery of products aimed at high growth areas such as faster recovery and retrieval, content management and email management. The market is rapidly evolving with new pressures ranging from ever expanding compliance obligations to more stringent TCO demands, and it is our software DNA that will propel EMC's growth in software.

The executive team and I are very excited about joining EMC and opening a new chapter in LEGATO's history. Together, we will drive the market and set the standard. We have built excellent momentum as a company and now we can take it to a new level. In closing, I would like to thank you for your continued efforts and ask you to stay focused on delivering on our commitments to our customers and partners.

Let's roll.

With Kind Regards,

David B. Wright

Chairman and CEO
