Dear Valued Partner,

I am very pleased to share with you the exciting news that OfficeMax and Office Depot have agreed to combine our two companies in a merger of equals. The Boards of Directors of both companies unanimously approved a definitive merger agreement entered into on February 20, 2013. The transaction is expected to close by the end of calendar year 2013, subject to stockholder approval from both companies, the receipt of regulatory approvals and other customary closing conditions. For a copy of the news release, visit the Investors section of our website at investor.officemax.com.

As a combined company, OfficeMax and Office Depot will be better positioned to meet the needs of business customers ranging from the sole proprietor and small business owner to multinational businesses. We expect to have the opportunity to build on our strong digital platforms and to expand our multichannel capabilities to better serve our customers. By combining customer insights and learnings from innovative pilot programs underway, we will be better able to identify and fulfill evolving customer needs.

Until the transaction closes, OfficeMax and Office Depot will continue to compete as two separate companies. Nothing about our relationship or the way you do business with OfficeMax will change before that time. During the transition period, decisions will be made about the combined company's executive management team, headquarters location and brand, and we will do our best to keep you updated.

We value your partnership and we are committed to working together to provide the excellent experience our customers have come to expect from OfficeMax. I am very proud to be part of OfficeMax today and I look forward to our continuing work together.

Sincerely,
