Item 9. Regulation FD Disclosure

On December 3, 2002, FirstEnergy Corp. (Company) updated its 2003 earnings guidance to $3.35 to $3.55 per share of common stock from the previously announced range of $3.70 to $3.90 per share - primarily as a result of an anticipated rise in non-cash pension and other post-employment benefit costs, which could reduce 2003 earnings by approximately $0.30 per share compared with 2002 costs. The revised guidance excludes the effect of the Davis-Besse Nuclear Power Station outage.

The Company also revised its estimated annual earnings-per-share growth rate to four to five percent, compared with the previous guidance of seven to eight percent. The pension and post-employment benefit cost increases, coupled with reduced opportunities in the competitive energy services sector, contributed to the revised earnings-per-share growth rate.

The Company also expects free cash flow, after capital expenditures and common stock dividends, to increase in 2003 to $800 million from the estimated 2002 level of approximately $300 million, which will support FirstEnergy's ongoing, aggressive debt-reduction program.

FirstEnergy Chairman and Chief Executive Officer H. Peter Burg and Senior Vice President and Chief Financial Officer Richard H. Marsh will discuss the Company's updated 2003 earnings guidance during its analyst conference on December 4, 2002, in New York City. A live Webcast of their remarks, which begins at approximately 8:00 a.m. Eastern time, will be available through FirstEnergy's Investor Information Web site.

FirstEnergy also will provide an overview of its pension plan assets and liabilities. FirstEnergy does not expect to be required to make a cash contribution to its pension plan in 2002 or 2003. However, if the market value of the Company's pension plan assets as of October 31, 2002, were to remain unchanged by year-end, FirstEnergy would recognize a non-cash, after-tax charge to common stockholders' equity of approximately $330 million to recognize a minimum pension liability. This charge would not affect the Company's 2002 net income.

The Company also will address the estimated effect of implementing on January 1, 2003, Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 143, "Asset Retirement Obligations." Adoption of this new standard should partially offset the effect of recognizing a minimum pension liability because it is expected to increase common stockholders' equity by approximately $140 million. The cumulative effect of this accounting change - an increase of approximately $0.50 per share to the Company's 2003 net income - is not reflected in FirstEnergy's 2003 earnings guidance.

FirstEnergy Corp. is a registered public utility holding company headquartered in Akron, Ohio.
