Dear Shareholder:
Municipal bonds recorded strong gains during the fiscal twelve-month reporting period ended April 30, 2012. These gains were achieved despite significant market volatility and political uncertainty and an increased supply of municipal securities that came to market. During the reporting period, the strengthening U.S. economy encouraged investors to move out of cash and into municipal bonds.
For the fiscal twelve-month period ended April 30, 2012:
PIMCO Municipal Income Fund rose 30.95% on net asset value (NAV) and 27.20% on market price.
PIMCO California Municipal Income Fund rose 30.75% on NAV and 32.94% on market price.
PIMCO New York Municipal Income Fund rose 22.31% on NAV and 26.36% on market price. The Fiscal Twelve-Month Period In Review
The fiscal twelve-month reporting period began with gross domestic product (GDP), the value of goods and services produced in the country, the broadest measure of economic activity and the principal indicator of economic performance, expanding at an annual pace of 1.3%. GDP accelerated to an annual rate of 1.8% between July and September 2011, and to a 3.0% rate between October and December 2011. This momentum reversed during the first quarter of 2012 as GDP moved to a 1.9% annual pace.

The Federal Reserve (the Fed) kept its closely watched Fed Funds rate (the interest rate at which depository institutions trade funds held by the Fed with each other, usually on an overnight basis) in the 0.0% to 0.25% range for the entire fiscal twelve-month period. This in turn kept short-term U.S. Treasury yields and municipal bond yields (which tend to track Treasuries) quite low. Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke revealed that the Fed would maintain short-term interest rates in this range through late 2014. He also indicated that the Fed has not ruled out further attempts to stimulate the economy.

Although Treasury yields bounced up and down, the overall trend during the twelve-month fiscal reporting period was lower. The benchmark ten-year Treasury bond began the fiscal period yielding 3.32% and stood at 1.95% at April 30, 2012. This drop was likely a reflection of considerable market uncertainty and the extraordinary volatility that characterized much of the twelve-month period. This volatility occurred both overseas, where Europe s sovereign debt crisis seemed to wax and wane repeatedly, and in Washington, where a hyperpartisan political standoff over taxes and spending led to a downgrade of the government s long-term credit rating by Standard & Poor s.

2 PIMCO Municipal Income Funds Annual Report 4.30.12

Table of Contents

As the twelve-month fiscal reporting period began, new municipal issuance was low; however, it quickly accelerated, as suppliers moved to lock in low interest rates. New issuance rose from approximately $4.2 billion weekly in January to approximately $7.9 billion weekly as the fiscal reporting period drew to a close in April. One report indicated that new municipal issuance in April 2012 was 113% greater than April 2011, yet the market absorbed this increased supply with relative ease.

Outlook

Subsequent to the end of the fiscal reporting period, Europe s sovereign debt crisis appeared to take another turn for the worse. Investors flocked to the perceived safety of U.S. Treasuries and yields plunged in response. China s economy is also slowing, and in the U.S., there is growing uncertainty concerning future levels of taxes and spending. In addition, a series of tax cuts are scheduled to expire on December 31, 2012, and major spending reductions are planned to begin in January 2013. Higher taxes, reduced spending, or both, would almost certainly have a negative impact on the economy in 2013. Consequently, there are many reasons for caution going forward.

PIMCO Municipal Income Funds Fund Insights

April 30, 2012 (unaudited)

For the twelve month fiscal year ended April 30, 2012, PIMCO Municipal Income Fund returned 30.95% on net asset value (NAV) and 27.20% on market price.

For the twelve month fiscal year ended April 30, 2012, PIMCO California Municipal Income Fund returned 30.75% on NAV and 32.94% on market price.

For the twelve month fiscal year ended April 30, 2012, PIMCO New York Municipal Income Fund returned 22.31 % on NAV and 26.36% on market price.

The municipal bond market generated solid results during the twelve month reporting period. The overall municipal market (measured by the Barclays Municipal Bond Index the Index) posted positive returns during ten of the twelve months of the period. Strengthening municipal fundamentals, including rising tax revenues, as well as relatively modest primary market supply drove this performance. In addition, investor demand was generally strong as investors looked to enhance income. Though the municipal market sold off in both October 2011 and March 2012, these bumps proved to be only modest and temporary price declines that ultimately reversed course. The index returned 11.36%, during the twelve-month reporting period.

PIMCO Municipal Income Fund and PIMCO New York Municipal Income Fund benefited from an overweighting to revenue bonds versus general obligation bonds. This contributed to results as revenue bonds outperformed general obligations during the reporting period.

Each Fund benefited from overweight exposures to the corporate-backed and tobacco sectors as these sectors outperformed the Index. PIMCO Municipal Income Fund and PIMCO California Municipal Income Fund benefited from their overweight positions in the strong performing healthcare sector. PIMCO New York Municipal Income Fund s overweighting to education enhanced results. PIMCO California Municipal Income Fund benefited from exposure to California issued municipals, as bonds in California generally outperformed the broader market.

Underweight duration in comparison to their benchmarks detracted from all three Funds performance, as municipal yields declined during the twelve-month period. For PIMCO Municipal Income Fund, a steepening yield curve bias detracted from results, as the municipal curve flattened during the reporting period.

PIMCO California Municipal Income Fund s overweight position to the housing sector detracted from performance, as the housing sector underperformed the benchmark. PIMCO New York Municipal Income Fund s exposure to municipals issued in New York generally detracted from performance, as New York municipals generally lagged the broader market.

All three funds utilized payer interest rate swaps to manage duration in the period that detracted from performance due to the falling rate environment. The funds also utilized Treasury futures during the reporting period to manage the portfolios duration, which did not meaningfully impact the Funds performance during the period.

(1) Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Total return is calculated by determining the percentage change in NAV or market price (as applicable) in the specified period. The calculation assumes that all income dividends and capital gain distributions, if any, have been reinvested. Total return does not reflect broker commissions or sales charges in connection with the purchase or sale of Fund shares. Total return for a period of more than one year represents the average annual total return.

Performance at market price will differ from results at NAV. Although market price returns typically reflect investment results over time, during shorter periods returns at market price can also be influenced by factors such as changing views about the Funds, market conditions, supply and demand for the Funds shares, or changes in the Funds dividends.

An investment in the Funds involves risk, including the loss of principal. Total return, market price, market price yield and NAV will fluctuate with changes in market conditions. This data is provided for information purposes only and is not intended for trading purposes. Closed-end funds, unlike open-end funds, are not continuously offered. There is a one time public offering and once issued, shares of closed-end funds are traded in the open market through a stock exchange. NAV is equal to total assets attributable to common shareholders less total liabilities divided by the number of common shares outstanding. Holdings are subject to change daily.

- (2) Market Price Yield is determined by dividing the annualized current monthly dividend per common share (comprised of net investment income) by the market price per common share at April 30, 2012.
- (3) Represents Floating Rate Notes Issued in tender option bond transactions and Preferred Shares that are outstanding (collectively Leverage), as a percentage of total managed assets. Total managed assets refer to the total assets (including assets attributable to Leverage) minus accrued liabilities (other than liabilities representing Leverage).
