Dear XXX,

As follow up to our recent meetings I wanted to reach out and keep you apprised of developments w/in Riverbed. Today we announced an exciting new addition to our growing product portfolio, our intent to acquire OPNET, a public company (NASDAQ: OPNT) headquartered in Bethesda, MD. OPNET is a leader in application performance monitoring (APM), a growing and increasingly important market.

The addition of OPNET's broad-based family of APM products will enhance our already strong Cascade solutions for network performance management (NPM). OPNET's APM solution goes beyond network visibility to measure the true end-user experience, supported by application component monitoring and root cause analysis. The resulting combination will be a product line with unparalleled visibility and insight into application and network performance.

We're excited to be able to offer our partners a broader family of solutions for solving network and application performance problems across all IT networks and infrastructures-including physical, virtual, cloud, and software-defined and hybrid data centers-that no other company can match.

OPNET will become part of the Cascade business unit. As a valued member of the Riverbed Partner Network Partner Program we will be sending out more communications and information on this new offering as it becomes available.

We look forward to working with you as we continue to enhance our complete family of performance management solutions.
